The volume is a street photography anthology that brings together the most representative and iconic images, ranging from the '70s to today, that shows the evolution and the spirit of street and urban photography through the vision of both masters and young generations of photographers as well. The book showcases the work of artists who inspire and provoke, whose point of view awakens us to a System of Independent Culture that defines the Drago aesthetic. The book features the work of Larry Clark, Boogie, Ed Templeton, Glen E. Friedman, JR, Estevan Oriol, Martha Cooper, Jamel Shabazz, Bruce Davidson, Jim Goldberg, Mary Ellen Mark, Bruce Gilden, Ryan McGinley, Hugh Holland, Jill Freedman, C.R. Stecyk, Dash Snow, Bruce LaBruce, Ivory Serra, Olivia Bee, among the about a hundred contributing photographers.

Curated by Drago publisher Paulo Luca von Vacano, the volume also features a text by Miss Rosen, New York-based photo editor and photography book specialist, and another one by Ethel Seno, project manager and curatorial coordinator at MOCA, Los Angeles.

"The street is more than the site of public lives. It is a place where movements are born. The street is where people come together to stand as one, to speak the truth to those in power, to defy the corrupt system. Freedom is born on the streets".
(Miss Rosen)
